Judge Georgia Bullock Looks Askance At Long Vacations For Kids

BY BOB KALLER

"Firsts" are an old story to Judge Georgia P. Bullock, recently retired to the Peninsula after 32 years on the California bench.

Her aunt, Dr. Frances E. Hoggan, was the first woman M.D. in English history. Judge Bullock herself was the first woman police court judge in Southern California, and later the first woman appointed to California's Superior Court, where she presided with distinction for many years.

A descendant of an old Welsh family on her father's side, she was born Georgia Morgan — and the last surviving officer of the Battle of the Nile, Captain John Phillips, was one of her ancestors. Her mother's family came from Connecticut — but Judge Bullock herself was raised in Chicago, where her father was a business executive.

Both of Judge Bullock's parents had a strong artistic bent, and this she regards as part of the reason for the great success of her own son, Wynn Bullock, Peninsula photographer.

The young Morgan girl was married in 1897 to William Wingfield Bullock. The latter died a few years later, leaving the young widow with two children to raise. The family came to California in 1908, where Judge Bullock worked as a legal secretary while going to law school. In 1914 she was graduated from the University of Southern California and plunged into the hurly-burly of Southern California law practice.

She still remembers her first case proudly. She secured an acquittal for her client, a man accused of theft. "I had a lot to learn," she says with a grin.

In 1913 she was appointed a police court judge. Women were

Carmelites Take Honors In Flowers Food And Clothing

Mrs. L. E. Gottfried heads the lists of Carmel exhibit winners at the Monterey County Fair with eight firsts, three seconds and five thirds, in the amateur annual and perennial cut flowers class; one first, one third in amateur potted plants; and a second for floriculture amateur display, teamed with her husband, L. E. Gottfried.

Mrs. Beulah Scott is a close second in the award-winning race carrying off six firsts, five seconds and three third places in the home economics food division and a special first for string beans canned in Kerr jars with Kerr caps. Mrs. Scott also won a second place in the clothing and textiles division.

Third in award garnering is Harriet Anderson with six firsts, four seconds and five thirds in the floriculture division.

Other Carmel winners in this division are Mrs. Frank K. Timmins, four first places; two seconds and one third. Two of these awards won in collaboration with Beth Rasmussen for a floriculture education exhibit and an amateur display. Leonard Cohen has four firsts; Hallie Samson, five firsts, one second and three thirds. Mrs. Carl Rasmussen, one first, one Letter To The Editor . . .

Castro Valley, Calif.
August 22, 1956

Editor of the Pine Cone:

I wonder if the people of Carmel realize how fortunate they are to have a Youth Center which is operated by and for the teenagers of the community? Sometimes an activity such as this operates quietly and efficiently and is not appreciated until it has ceased to function and then too late the community realizes that it has lost a valuable piece in the complicated puzzle of community living.

My husband and I belong to an organization in Castro Valley—a community of about 30,000 people near Oakland—which is trying to get the community behind a movement to create just such an organization as you have here in your Youth Center. Because of this, when we saw the sign, Carmel Youth Center, we thought that if we went in to visit we might get some ideas on how to design the building we are hoping to put up. The design of the building became very unimportant as we talked to Mr. Giles and several of the young people there. The manner in which the Center conducts its affairs is not only unique but quite logical — it is a Youth Center operated and used by the Youth of Carmel. I understand that there has been some criticism of this method of operation but why not have it this way? It is my opinion that too many decisions are made by adults for the youth of today and that may be one of the reasons they grow up not able to adjust to the adult world, which is one decision after another. A great many adults would be amazed at the ability of the teenager to "think" and at his capacity to "do" if he is only given the opportunity to "think" and to "do".

I also understand that there has been some criticism of the fact that the building is not open to use by any other groups. This is, in my opinion, a good policy. Seven years ago we built a community center building in Castro Valley which was to be primarily for the use of the teenagers. Today our organization is fighting for the right of the Teen Age Club of Castro Valley to use that building two Friday nights a month for their dances. The adults of the

Plan Commission Bans Multiple Dwelling In C-2 Demands 100 % Parking

The Carmel Planning Commission, exercising its authority under the interim zoning ordinance, denied a building permit for a multiple dwelling in the C-2 (light industry) zone yesterday afternoon. The existing zoning ordinance permits multiple dwellings in this zone.

In refusing the permit, as an incompatible use in C-2 zone, the commission made two statements of policy that (if not appealed to the council and over-ruled) will have far reaching effects in the zoning picture of Carmel, and in the land cost for future multiple dwelling construction.

The policy decisions:

(1) Building permits will not be issued for multiple dwellings (apartment houses, motels, hotels or stores with apartments on the second floor, as in the plans before them yesterday afternoon) in the C-2 zone, because such use is incompatible with the primary use of the zone, light industry, also some land space should be saved for such industrial use.

(2) The commission will require 1000 square feet of land for each unit of a multiple dwelling; a minimum of 350 feet of this area to be devoted to parking and landscaping. One parking space will be required for each unit. This policy will apply to all future multiple dwelling applications in the C-1 zone. Present requirements is for 2-3 off street parking per number of units.

The second policy announcement has been formulated after months of considering multiple dwelling building permit applications in the C-1 zone.

The first policy was the direct result of yesterday afternoon's seven shop, 14 apartments and 12 parking spaces application of Dorothy Schultz for a proposed building on the land formerly occupied by the Bettie Greene Stables on Junipero Street between Fourth and Fifth Avenues.

William L. Cranston, representing the owner, was informed by the commission that his client's proposed building was incompatible with the land use in that area. The commission thought second story dwelling units opposite a laundry, across from a forge, on Carmel's one 100-foot access route, were in disharmony with existing land use, would create trouble for the owner, and, according to Commission Chairman Putnam, "create a plague to burden the council through the years."

Council Sets Tax Puts Items On Tour

City council, meeting in adjourned session Tuesday afternoon, held second reading, by title only, and adopted an ordinance fixing the city tax rate at $1.00.

The postoffice and a pedestrian cross walk for Junipero were put on the council's next tour of inspection. Mayor Horace Lyon wants the council to study the traffic congestion at the postoffice and Francis Whitaker suggested a cross walk on Junipero from the Corner of Sixth at the path entrance to Devendorf Plaza. Also, he proposed that the entrance to the path be changed slightly to connect directly at the corner. Walt Pilot's new store on Junipero is the reason for the pedestrian walk.

Pres. Eisenhower Is Scheduled To Arrive Here Tonight

President Eisenhower will arrive on the Monterey Peninsula sometime between 10:00 and 12:00 o'clock tonight. He will board a special train on a siding at the Cow Palace near San Francisco, where they are holding the Republican Convention, after his speech accepting his nomination to run for a second term as the Republican candidate.

During his week-end stay on the peninsula, Mr. Eisenhower will live at the Cypress Point Country Club, which has been turned over for his exclusive use, and play golf on the Cypress course. There is some talk, unverified, that, surrounded by security people, he may take a sight-seeing drive around the peninsula.

Mayor Horace Lyon received a letter this week acknowledging the city council's offer of the hospitality of Carmel to Mr. Eisenhower. The letter is signed by the president, himself, to everybody's intense excitement, and Councilman John Chitwood has taken the stand that this letter cannot be regarded as a personal possession but belongs to the city and should be framed and hung in the council chambers. Besides, if it hadn't been for him, says Councilman Chitwood, nobody on the council would have thought of writing to the president.

Wilder And Jones Low Bidder On Job To Be Awarded Mon.

Wilder and Jones, local plumbing firm, is low bidder for the trunk line and sewer installation job in Carmel Hills No. 2, the Carmel Sanitary District Board found when six bids were opened at the Monday night meeting. The board put over awarding the job until Monday, August 27, 4:00 o'clock. Bids ranged from H. Weber's of Hayward, $84,780 to Wilder and Jones' $55,349.50, which is five percent lower than the engineer's estimate.

Granite Construction Company, with a bid of $58,297.16 is Wilder and Jones' closest contender.

The board passed a resolution calling for the election to fill three vacancies (no contest) but put over until Monday naming whom they want the supervisors to appoint to the board. Two will be the incumbent members who declared for re-election, Keith Evans and Clayton Neill.

No protests were presented at the public hearing on levying assessments on Carmel Hills No. 2.

FOOTBALL SEASON JUST AROUND THE CORNER

A look around the village playfields shows that King Football has taken over for the summer pastime of baseball and in a few short weeks the high school and college teams will be seeing game action. Although school doesn't start until September 4, prep gridders in the Coast Counties Athletic League will don uniforms on August 29 for their first practice sessions. The early start is sanctioned by the league officials in order that all players may have 15 days practice before the annual Football Jamboree scheduled for September 14 at Salinas Stadium. Carmel High grid candidates will report for medicals next Monday and Tuesday and will be out in full regalia Wednesday afternoon.

Peninsula football fans should be in for a season of interesting play with an evenly balanced race in prospect for both the B and A divisions of the Coast Counties Athletic League and good schedules arranged for the Monterey Peninsula College Lobos and the Fort Ord Warriors.

For those fans who are anxious for gridiron action, the Santa Cruz Seahawks are already in the middle of their season and are scheduled to play at the Monterey Peninsula College on September 1. The Seahawks are loaded with professional and college talent and could give most of the college clubs a whale of a game. Led by brilliant quarterback Paul Larson, the Santa Cruz semi-pros offer an interesting style of football and are currently enjoying an eight-game win streak. Larson is also Fort Ord's big offensive threat and will lead a sturdy band of Warriors against the best in service competition when the season gets underway in mid-September.

A new spirit pervades the Monterey Peninsula College grid program with the personable Bill Abbey replacing fiery Dick Friend as the Lobo mentor. Abbey, fresh from a phenomenal season at Fort Ord, inherits a wealth of material at MPC and figures to have the Lobos in contention for the Coast Conference JC title.

Carmel High, co-champs in the B division of the CCAL, figures to have rough going against the likes of Hollister, Gilroy and Pacific Grove, but should be able to hold their own with the smaller schools in the league. Five returning lettermen, Clyde Klaumann, Charley Dawson, Joe Mason, Brian Leidig and Mike Meheen, will form the nucleus for the 1956 varsity as most of the positions will be filled by players moving up from Coach Buzz Rainer's hustling junior-varsity club. The Hollister Haybalers are definitely the team to beat in the B division as Coach Bob Matson fields an all-veteran team with speed, weight and football savvy. Pacific Grove's Coach Baxter, a newcomer to the league this season, is tabbed to have the runner-up team as the Breakers are equipped with plenty of speed and a fair sprinkling of 1955 lettermen. Over at Gilroy, the Mustangs are also hurting because of the graduation of their all-senior 1955 aggregation. King City had a fine junior-varsity team in '55 and most of these boys will be up for varsity duty this season. Gonzales lost their all-league halfback, Tony Calub, in an unfortunate drowning accident this summer and Coach Burns will also have to rely on junior-varsity graduates for his varsity. The surprise team of the league could be Live Oak (Morgan Hill) which is growing in size at a terrific rate. New to football last season, Live Oak has good speed throughout the squad and in Dennis Condray the Oaks boast a 195-pound fullback who is also the league sprint king.

In the A division of the CCAL, it appears that Monterey has a slight edge due to the presence of quarterback Claude Crabb, but Watsonville and Salinas are definite threats to the Toreadores. If experienced coaching can produce a winner, the Santa Cruz Cardinals should be tough to handle as their new coach is Larry Seimering, a winning college coach and one of the most astute football men in California. Seimering takes over a winless varsity squad at Santa Cruz and improvement is almost a certainty.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel MA 4-3881.

CARMEL COLOR AND GLASS NINE WINS LEAGUE TITLE

In a playoff tussle with the George Dear Cubs, the Carmel Color and Glass team powered to an 8-2 win to wrap up the league title in the 8 to 12 kids summer recreation baseball league. Page van Loben Sels, an accurate throwing righthander who captains the C&G gang, pitched the victory for the green-shirted champs and gave up three scattered hits. Pat Bein's four-bagger was the only damaging blow off the diminutive Page and produced both the Cub runs. Baxter Garcia, one of the winningest pitchers in the league, opposed van Loben Sels on the mound and was given a rude greeting by the 1956 champions. The C&G lads smashed out nine hits and drew six walks in racking up the coveted victory. Big blow for the winners was Mike Cranston's booming home run with two mates aboard.

The following boys played for the C&G team: Larry Thompson, Mel Grimes, Tim Mosolf, Dennis Connell, Bob Bowman, Carlton Macy, Bob Wakefield, Mike Cranston and Captain van Loben Sels.

This playoff game winds up action in the kid's circut but all the sprouts are making plans to participate in the popular league next season. The sports-minded sponsors who furnished jerseys and caps for the future baseball stars were: Wermuth Transfer, Burgess Auto Service, Boystown, Color and Glass, George Dear, and Dale Leidig's Texaco Service. With a new baseball field scheduled for construction at the high school this winter, Carmel kids can look forward to another fine season next summer.

READINGS ON FOR NEXT GOLDEN BOUGH PLAY

Time Out For Ginger, a comedy by Ronald Alexander, will be the next show at the Golden Bough Circle Theatre, under the direction of Charles Thomas. Readings will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 8:00 o'clock, at the theatre on Casanova between Eighth and Ninth Streets. The play calls for two women, three men, three teen-age girls between 14 and 18 and two teen-age boys. All parts are open. Anyone interested in backstage work is also invited to come to the readings.

community have crowded the teen-agers out and are monopolizing the building (and I doubt if they will give it up to be used even those two nights a month by the teen-agers of our community).

A lot of people find it very easy to criticize but very difficult to help the youth of today—but you have people among you that have stopped criticising and have set up an organization that is making better citizens out of your youth by letting them "think" and "do" for themselves. Be grateful for what you have and support the door to door drive for funds that the Youth Council of the Carmel Youth Center will be having in September. Don't be sorry just too late when the doors have closed and the kids are on the street corner looking for a place to go and something to do!

Dear Sir:

Having recently returned from Europe and having delightfully entertained in Nottingham, England, by Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Durham, it occurred to me that a number of old-time Carmelites might be interested to know that Hazel and Metz, as they were fondly known, are very happy and busy as our Political Party here, politicking, as Metz was re-elected Councilman with the biggest majority in the history of Nottingham.

We spent hours speaking of the Shands, Rogers, Herons, the Forest Theater, The Golden Bough, etc., etc. We felt much of their hearts are still in your delightful town where I, too, spent many happy years.

Your truly,
C. J. (Mac) McGrath

My Dear Mrs. Cook:

I have been so interested in all the controversy in the Pine Cone about a so-called "Plan" for Carmel. You see I write it with a capital P for it is that important to me.

I am the last of my family who, for many years, have spent winters in Carmel. It has been to us a refuge of peace and beauty, and after all illnesses, deaths, business problems and the like, the slogan was, "Let's go to blessed little Carmel and the wind!"

To me, it is one untouched spot in all the promotion and so-called progress of our present life, and I would hate to see a hand laid on it. These, you will probably say, are the sentiments of an older person (which I am) but I do think the advice and sentiment of older ones are as valuable as the progressive thoughts of the young.

I fully realize that any place, with the beauty and charm of Carmel, is hard to hold down, but I do hope it will not get out of hand to such an extent that a Plan will have to be adopted for it, like any other place, which it certainly is not now.

Cordially Yours,
Helen Reynolds

Dear Editor:

After reading of the proposed changes advocated by some, may I add my protest to many of your residents to any change from the present unique and distinctive charm of Carmel. We have just returned from a month's motor tour north to British Columbia and would name Carmel and Victoria as the two most delightfully different cities or communities visited enroute. We sincerely hope they both will withstand the tourist commercialist pressures and remain their own lovely, individual selves, forevermore. There are millions of other cities, replicas of each other, for those who want what the yhave—Carmel is different and lovely. Please keep it so.

Sincerely

Editor of The Carmel Pine Cone:

By chance I came across a copy of The Pine Cone of August 2, and read with great interest your report on the Planning Commission's public hearing on the proposed Master Plan for Carmel, as advocated by Larry Livingston, Jr.

As I fall into the category of an annual visitor to your lovely Bach Festival I probably have no right whatsoever to offer any comment on this subject. However, the temptation is too great to resist. At all costs, I feel I must add my few words to those of you who are trying to preserve the beauties of Carmel and stop this senseless blight that appears to be spreading over the whole of the state of California.

As I see it, the issue is very simple. Do you want Carmel to be totally made over into one of these so-called modern communities, or do you wish to keep it a quiet, charming, individual town with homes whose inhabitants are individualists and who do not belong in this modern march? Do you wish to cater to the tourists who stomp up and down your main streets (I do not put myself in this group), or, to the people who have lived in your town and loved it for the very things you wish to destroy? Are you, by chance, catering to the military? If so, the latter is indeed a weak prop. In 20 years it is more than probable there will be no more military in your area. Modern weapons, being what they are, large military installations will soon be a thing of the past.

Should any of your people in Carmel like to witness a horrible example of what could happen (to Carmel) I advise them to drive up this way. Go over to Marin County, which used to be a beautiful community of tree-lined roads and tastefully built homes. Take a look at what so-called "progress" has done for that county. Then, go through our Peninsula—take a look at the subdivisions, the supermarkets, etc. The very thought of the same thing happening in Carmel makes me shudder. Why do we in our travels admire beauty in other countries, yet do our level best to destroy it in our own?

The Harold Linds Open New Store For Home Furnishings

Carmel Home Furnishings is the name of the community's newest furniture and wallpaper store. It is located on San Carlos Street at Fifth Avenue in the McPhillips Hotel Building, in premises occupied formerly by San Carlos Realty. (The latter firm, now re-named San Carlos Agency, has been established on Sixth Avenue, between Dolores and Lincoln Streets, for some months.)

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Lind are the proprietors of Carmel Home Furnishings. Harold Lind brings to his new endeavor long experience in the wholesale home furnishing field, and extensive background in painting, wall papering and color harmony. A wallpaper studio for the selection of wall coverings of all types is a feature of Carmel Home Furnishings. As well, French Provincial and Early American furniture will be stocked, plus upholstered sofas and chairs, and lamps of many types.

An extensive line of fine carpeting also will be available.

Harold and Dorothy Lind, former residents of Coos Bay, Oregon, have lived in Carmel for a year and a half. During that time, Harold Lind has worked here as a paper hanger and painter, crafts he intends to continue, while his wife, Dorothy, supervises operation of their new store.

Anna Van der Valk

Mrs. Anna Clare Van der Valk was found dead on Sunday in her home on Twelfth Avenue, between San Carlos and Mission Streets. Her gardener noticed lights were burning in the house on Sunday afternoon and notified Carmel police. Officers entered the house through a window and found Mrs. Van der Valk dead on the floor of her bedroom.

Cause of death, as yet undetermined, is under investigation by the coroner's office.

Mrs. Van der Valk had been a resident of Carmel for 12 years. She was born in Bisbee, Arizona, on June 24, 1906.

Survivors are two brothers, Paul Brophy of Phoenix, Arizona, and James Brophy of Warren, Aizona; three sisters, Mrs. F. Pyzel of Rye, New York, Mrs. Maurtis de Balank of The Hague, Holland, and Mrs. A. Hynes of Piedmont, California; an aunt, Mrs. Charles Brown of Aptos, California, and an uncle, W. Flanigan of Lafayette, California.

Holy Rosary was recited on Tuesday evening in the Dorney and Farlinger Funeral Home. Funeral services were held in the Dorney and Farlinger Chapel on Wednesday morning followed by a Requiem Mass celebrated in Carmel Mission.

Herman Hallan

Herman Talbert Hallan died on Tuesday afternoon in a Salinas hospital after a long period of ill health. He was a familiar figure in Carmel riding his bicycle to town during the 13 years he lived here on San Carlos Street between Twelfth and Thirteenth Avenues.

Mr. Hallan was born on September 5, 1902, in McClean County, North Dakota, near Turtle Lake. He was a mechanic and a veteran of World War II.

Survivors are his wife, Hanna, of Carmel; five sisters, a brother and an uncle living in North Dakota, and another brother living in Bell, California.

Private funeral services are this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea with Dr. Leigh Mudge and the Reverend Charles H. Burrill officiating. Paul Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

Friends wishing to make contributions in memory of Mr. Hallan are asked to do so in the form of donations to the Monterey County Hospital.

TWO HURT IN CAR ACCIDENT

Kenneth Mirza, San Antonio Street near Tenth Avenue, is a patient in the Peninsula Community Hospital, with minor injuries received in an automobile accident on Carmel Hill at 1:40 o'clock this morning. Jose S. Yance of Monterey, a passenger in the car, is also in the hospital suffering from major injuries received in the crash.

According to Mirza, driver of the car, he was forced off the road by another car as he went down the hill to Monterey. Mirza's car hit the bank on one side, careened across the highway and stopped when it hit the opposite bank.

Membership Backs Board In Youth Center Fund Drive

One hundred Carmel Youth Center members Monday evening unanimously approved the action of their youth board in undertaking a fund raising drive from September 10-28.

Seventy-eight immediately signed up to help obtain the necessary $6,500 to maintain the center this year. Those not signing explained previous commitments, such as returning to college, were the only reasons preventing them from working on the drive.

Denny Johnson, recently returned from Air Force service, an older member of the center, told those present that it was a fine thing for the members themselves to raise the money. He had been one of those working to obtain the building in the beginning and he felt that his work at that time had helped him appreciate the center more.

Bob Paddleford, who attends UCLA, sent a message of congratulation to the members and assured them that the people of Carmel would support their drive.

Withdrawal of Community Chest support this year created the need for the Youth Center members to seek direct support from the community.

not highly regarded for judicial positions at the time. The bar association ignored her completely, and the powerful Los Angeles Times opposed her actively. Nevertheless she served with distinction for two years, and continued to seize every opportunity to be active in the public eye, speaking and traveling extensively.

In 1917, she became a deputy district attorney, in 1924 was appointed to the Municipal Court, and in 1931 to the State Superior Court, being successively elected by ever greater voting pluralities until her retirement early this year.

As the judge responsible for adoption cases in Los Angeles for several decades, Judge Bullock developed some firm views on the marriage and family relationship of today. For one thing, she believes that there is much more opportunity for children to get in trouble today than in former years, and that this is in part responsible for the rise in juvenile delinquency.

Particularly is she against giving the use of cars to youngsters at too early an age. The mobility acquired is all too often used to remove youngsters from the site and source of discipline, she points out. The constant exercise of judgment demanded is also often beyond their capacity, she adds.

Another curious point that bothers Judge Bullock is the one of long summer vacations. She is strongly in favor of breaking such vacation up into two or three periods during the year. Almost three months of summer release from school cannot help but leave children bored and restless by the end, she points out — and court statistics seem to indicate that this is the time when most children are apt to get in trouble. Mostly, of course, it is the amount of care given to children and the quality of discipline administered (not the amount) that determines in almost every instance whether a child gets into difficulties or not.

When it comes to this latter, more jobs for women may have improved their economic status, she points out, but not the condition of family life.

As an old crusader for women's rights, Judge Bullock sadly admits that most women have not taken full advantage of these privileges. They do not take sufficient interest in whom they elect to office, she says, and do not make a consistent effort to keep apprised of the qualifications of candidates.

She also has some strong reservations about the actual operation of the community property laws in California, which were originally put into effect to protect women and, particularly in alimony cases, have in practice become so one-sided as to take on certain of the aspects of a "racket."

In the adoption process, which is close to her heart, she says that there are a number of procedural changes which could be made to advantage. Since currently there is so much stress on the economic income of the adopting family, Judge Bullock reluctantly admits that there is considerable merit to the charges that have been made by labor and welfare organizations to the effect that it is almost impossible for working people to adopt a child.

She herself would favor the formation of a state fund that would make some contribution where necessary to the support of any adopted child. This would serve to reduce the stress on economic income levels, now customary, and would give almost every sound and stable family an even chance to adopt a child.

Now peacefully retired on the Peninsula, Judge Bullock has given her extensive volumes of records, books and papers to the great UCLA Library collection and attempts to live quietly, writing, and reading. But like the veteran fireman at the sound of a bell, there is nothing that pleases her more than a long distance phone call from one of her former confreres in Los Angeles for advice on a difficult adoption case—which happens at flattering intervals.

Ralph West

Ralph Millard West died of a cardiac condition Monday morning in his Carmel Point home. He had lived here for the past eight years.

Mr. West was born in Albia, Iowa, on July 25, 1885. He retired in 1947 after 37 years as a member of the law firm of Crossman and West, Barton and Quinlan in Omaha, Nebraska.

In Carmel he was active in the founding of the Carmel Presbyterian Church and was one of the elders of the church at the time of his death.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Mildred W. West of Carmel; a sister, Miss Alice West of Omaha; three nephews, Elmer L. West of Kansas City, Missouri; Lieutenant Colonel George C. West, stationed in Italy; and Commander Ralph M. West of New London, Connecticut; and a niece, Mrs. Arthur Brown of Kansas City.

Memorial services for Mr. West were held on Wednesday afternoon in the Carmel Presbyterian Church, Dr. Joseph M. Ewing and Dr. Harry Clayton Rogers, officating. Burial was in Mountain View Cemetery in Oakland, Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Barbara Spencer

Mrs. Barbara Hebb Spencer, who had been a resident of Carmel Valley since March, died at a local hospital on August 15 after a long period of ill health.

Mrs. Spencer was born in Chicago, Illinois, on January 1, 1878. Her husband, the late David Spencer, died in 1931. She made her home in Carmel Valley with her niece, Mrs. Beulah Powers.

Other survivors are another niece, Mrs. Andrew H. Hunt of Texas; and three nephews, Calvin H. Mullin of Hollywood, Oliver C. Mullin of Inglewood, and Everett Mullin of Bakersfield.

Funeral services, conducted by Chaplain John Wright, were held in the Dorney and Farlinger Memorial Chapel on August 17. Burial was in the family plot in Wheaton, Illinois.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

On Wednesday morning, August 29, at 10:00 o'clock the final meeting will be held of this year's summer reading club. This final meeting will be open to any child in the area whether or not he belonged to the reading club. Children are invited to come in costume, perhaps the representation of their favorite characters in the books read this summer. Prizes will be given for costumes, but children should come even if they are not in costume. Was it Winnie-the-Pooh who said, "Some do and some don't. We can't all." Mrs. Beth Garcia, who is herself the author of several charming books for children, will bring her collection of character-dolls from history and literature, and will talk to the children about the characters the dolls represent. When the Children's Librarian, Pauline Heisinger, was speaking to the club members about the celebration, one little boy said his favorite character was Black Hawk, and one little girl said her's was Alice in Wonderland, and both were going to come costumed as their favorite character. And then a little boy said his favorite character was Mr. Toad, and that one we are all waiting to see! Remember the time—10:00 o'clock in the morning. Remember the date — Wednesday, August 29. Remember the place — the Children's Room in the Library. And most of all — remember to come.

This library now has a second copy of the Master Plan for Carmel, and for that reason we can circulate a copy. When we had only one, we were forced to keep it in the library and ask patrons to use it here. The second copy may circulate for two days. That new book on Community Planning by Aronovici spent a lonely week on the examination shelves. No one was enough interested in community planning to put his name on the waiting list. This was a surprise to us, because we thought the book a very timely thing. It is the first book we have put out that drew no names at all.

Father Serra is the subject of a new biography entitled The Last of the Conquistadors. It was written by Omer Englebert, who is a member of the Franciscan Order, as was Father Serra himself.

Captain of the Queens is the life story of Captain Harry Grattidge, who has served as captain of both the Queen Mary and the Queen Elizabeth. Another book to go out next week is the Narratives of Exploration and Adventure of John Charles Fremont. The original text of the book was written by Fremont, and the work was edited by Allan Nevins, who is a well known biographer of Fremont, and a professor of history at Columbia University. The book has a "you are there" sort of excitement about it that makes it live for the reader.

Another interesting book is by Wilma Donahue and is entitled Earning Opportunities for Older Workers. The second section of the book is perhaps the most practical because it is concerned with adapting jobs to fit the capacities of older workers, and creating jobs for older citizens.

The irrepressible P. G. Wodehouse, who has just become an American citizen, has done it again with America, I Like You. Here he is reported to tell all about his 50-year love affair with the United States. He recommends that you have a hearty meal before starting his book, but we believe that it is funny even on an empty stomach. Try it either way, you'll probably like it.

There are a lot more, so remember to come in and quietly place your name on their waiting lists.

NANCY HAS CAST PARTY

Nancy Lofton, Viola in the Forest Theater production of Twelfth Night, invited the rest of the cast and the production staff to her home for a celebration party following opening night performance on Thursday evening.

Richard Lofton, Nancy's father, flew back to Carmel on Sunday in time to see his daughter's performance on closing night. He has been away three weeks on a trip to his home town, McClellanville, South Carolina, for a family reunion gathering.

Monterey County Fair On This Week End

A big, handsome, Monterey County Fair opened yesterday and will be going full blast through Sunday night.

Farmers' and gardeners' products can be found in the livestock, agriculture, horticulture and floriculture departments. Creative endeavors can be viewed in the art, photography, crafts and home economics displays.

Entertainment for all the family can be found on the outdoor stage every day and night. Kids will find fun on the children's playground, with a story-teller, rides and playground directors to give them plenty to do.

The Horse Show will offer nine performances, including four matinees at 1:30 and five evening shows at 8:00 o'clock.

After the game—

What makes a glass of beer so right?

It's the traditional thirst-quencher after a fast game of tennis or 18 holes of golf—the traditional beverage at any ball game or other "spectator sport." No wonder beer's so popular in California, the most sports-loving state in the Union.

Beer and ale fit right in with the fun and sportsmanship that goes with wholesome recreation. They're light, tangy, and refreshing—true beverages of moderation for those who enjoy the relaxed, informal California way of life.

Beer belongs to California living

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

More about geraniums. A friend casually asked me if I would please identify one variety of geranium that I had added to her garden by cuttings. As casually as you please, I replied that I would be delighted. And then started a fox and hound chase that has ended in exactly nothing. I searched all the technical books on geraniums, on gardens in general. I went to the ancient tomes and found to my delight that even Linnaeus, that father of horticultural nomenclature, threw up his hands when confronted with the mass of geraniums.

One authority on geraniums, whose book should be in all garden libraries, is Helen Van Pelt Wilson. Miss Wilson is as loathe to name varieties of geraniums as all experts seem to be. From what I can gather, the geranium is the greediest flower known, in that every scrap of pollen floating on the wind is grabbed and digested to upset the sexual characteristic of this plant. For one beautiful red geranium there are 20 different names, and if examined by an expert, each will be found to differ in minute degrees from another. Experts call this: "disorganizing the symmetry of the sexual system. The increase of genera in the geranium family is the direct road to confusion."

So . . . who am I to attempt identification of my friend's geranium? I've appealed to my "right hand fellow", Professor H. M. Butterfield at the University of California, and if anyone on earth can give us a break on this question, it will be Professor Butterfield.

The geranium seems to be one of the few plants that does not "stick to its own last". It steals pollen from all sorts of other plants. There is the phlox-geranium, with characteristics of the phlox; there is a daisy geranium, stealing from that plant, and on and on, that glutton geranium spends its life upsetting its own sexual system.

In Helen Van Pelt Wilson's book on Geraniums she majors on our own village, stating that nowhere in the country does the geranium come to such beauty as in this locality. There is even a new cross-type that is named Carmel. The Carmel geranium is described thus: "A lovely rosy-red flower with a clear, pure pink center." That's a help, isn't it? That description will cover myriad plants growing all over the place.

The flower that my friend wished me to identify(I shudder every time I contemplate my casual acceptance of her request), is a five petaled lavender climbing ivy geranium with unusually thick dark green foliage with dark marking at center of leaf. It is one of the ubiquitous climbing ivy geraniums that lends itself to hiding ugly scars on broken fences and overrunning gardens. All I can say in retrospect is Hurrah for the Geranium!

TWELFTH NIGHT

Laughter, song and the felicitous language of Shakespeare echoed through the Forest Theater last weekend. A buoyant, fast-paced Twelfth Night, played against a single charming garden scene under the tall pines, delighted four audiences from beginning to end, and appeared to delight its own actors as well. On Thursday, the opening night, there was a bright half-moon to shine on the lovesick Countess and highlight the roistering antics of Sir Toby and his friends. On the three following nights the audience sat happily through "the wind and the rain" — more accurately, the fog — and enjoyed every minute of this gayest of William Shakespeare's comedies.

Herbert Heron, who adroitly cut the play to three-quarters of its original length (omitting the rather tedious Duke Orsino and his court), assembled a cast for the most part very young, some members more experienced than others, all of them enthusiastic, and with his usual alchemy turned out a sparkling production. Sir Toby Belch, one of Shakespeare's immortals, was played with rollicking skill and disarming naturalness by Jack Morris. Karen Silvear was a pert and lively Maria. Edwin Craig, substituting on a week's notice for Anthony White, did well as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, showing a good comic flair. Jo-Anne Schoenbrod was a beautiful young Countess Olivia who spoke her lines with freshness and spirit. Milton Stitt's Malvolio emerged from being played almost "straight" in the early scenes into the pompous, rather pathetic figure we know so well; this is a difficult role, not by any means an entirely comic and ludicrous one. Fabian, a small part that can be given considerable scope, was acted ably and naturally by Allen Graham. The identical twins, Viola and Sebastian, not only looked as alike as "an apple cleft in twain" but were well cast: Nancy Lofton, not quite fifteen, played Viola with dignity and a charming angular grace (just right for a girl disguised as a boy), and Harold Conner's Sebastian had verve and strength. Above all, Herbert Heron brought his consummate artistry to the part of Feste, the fool, and tied the whole play together. His subtlety and lightness of touch (and foot!), his snatches of delicate, effortless singing, were a joy. Not to be forgotten are the two small stalwart property men, Gregory and Duncan Stitt, whose comments between scenes ("Gadzooks!") so delighted the audience.

Certain scenes of the production were outstanding: Sir Toby's and Sir Andrew's "carousing" scene, with the witty Feste as leavening; the unfortunate Malvolio in his dark prison cell; the duel between those two non-fighters, disguised Viola and the craven Sir Andrew. Hazel McLellan was responsible for the striking and becoming costumes; the recordings of lovely Elizabethan music were handled by Mausita Jennings. And the Forest Theater itself cast its own particular magic over clown, fool and countess, servant and suitor; and over those who watched them, seated by the two glowing fires under the sheltering pine trees and the night sky.

KISS ME KATE

Kiss Me Kate, as presented week-ends at The Wharf Theater, is a gay evening's fun for anyone who enjoys musical comedy. The sparkling Cole Porter tunes, and amusing book based on The Taming of the Shrew, make this a fast-paced show from beginning to end.

Shevlin Rodgers, as Fred Graham, scores a solid hit, and Georgiana Shaw, as Lois Lane, captivates the audience with her "big-eyed blonde innocence." Donna Robb, as Lilli Vanessi (Kate), does a smooth, competent job in a most difficult role, and is particularly effective in her singing of Women Are So Simple.

In the supporting cast are many faces famil-

AUTUMN HARPS

Yellow arrows
shot from horizon's brown-bow of scarlet-sheath and color comets fleet against the paradox of blue.
Loosed suns could not be more swift than these to a fallen world, to a brown, slow-breathing, dust-blown world.

Leaves tip — toss from startled elm trees in a spray of centrifugal—red lacquers scatter, brown-greens drift-spin, and scatter . . .

but the blue scimitars of music
cut the heat, lance heat as orioles whirl out — and their breath-blown glass-spirals break against brown-brittle of air leaving sound and color broken as obsidian-shattered harps.

INDIAN SUMMER

Great voice of sculptured silence chants your coming,
Bronze as your namesake etched in showering sun;
Diffused in wisdom on the crest of morning,
Your eyes obsidian, deep in revelation,
Winging their message over limpid waters.

Your ceremonial mantle, spun in witchcraft,
Contrives a cunning dexterous in its tinting
Of turquoise vastness jewelled in silver pools;
Of salmon sunsets brushed by ripened wheat
Where earth weaves texture's weft of tasseled corn.

Drifts from your councils feather through the valleys.
Haze of the mystic breathes upon your rapture.
Exalted spirit, emanating worship,
Creation is your shrine; devotion your repose.

—Cecily Sayers

CHECKERED GROUND

A shadow on the pathway
May often bring to mind
Home and folk and follies
That now are far behind.

And yet beside each shadow
A patch of sunlight lies
Which warms the fleeting moment
And lets a smile arise.

WALK THE TIGHT WIRE

Splendid performances by principals, and an off-beat suspense drama by a playwright who also enacts the leading role, enhance the first offering of the Nix Studio Theatre, titled, Walk The Tight Wire.

Dudley and Joanne Nix, owners of the Carmel Ballet Academy, are known to Carmelites for their work with children, and for the many outstanding ballet performances they have given the local community in the past. Now in association with producer, playwright and actor Dean Goodman, the Nixes are bringing to Carmel The Pacific Playwrights Company, a group of experienced San Francisco actors, who will present a repertory of drama, comedy and new plays by western writers.

Dean Goodman, an actor of commanding appearance, plays his own "hero" in Walk The Tight Wire, a suspense drama laid in the lonely, prairie country of southern Alberta. Walk The Tight Wire already has been shown in Canada; its presentation at the Nix Studio Theatre, Mission at Eighth Avenue, represents its United States premiere.

In his drama of a psycho-neurotic author who marries an unsuspecting young girl, and brings her to a lonely country house, haunted by past tragedies, Playwright-producer-actor Goodman probes deeply into character, motive and human relationships. He resolves his conflict in a surprise ending with which you may or may not agree. But you can be certain when you take your seat in the Nix Studio Theatre that you will be unable to guess the solution — which is both controversial and surprising.

Nancy Hansen is excellent as the naive, idealistic young bride, who gains maturity and stature as her bridegroom's painful past shatters her illusions. Miss Hansen builds toward emotional climaxes with power and expert technique, giving a performance you will remember.

Helen Blake brings beauty and skill to her role of Edith Elliot, a sympathetic friend, while Ed Mulvihill, as her doctor husband, who acts as warden on the emotions and aberrations of his psychologically-disturbed friend, Stephen Morrow, provides counter-balance to the personality extremes of the play's sometimes terrifying central character.

Sam Ridge is personable and believable as the rejected suitor who follows his former fiancee to her strange honeymoon lair and thereby precipitates the shocking and tense climax.

Dorothy Price maintains throughout Walk The Tight Wire the difficult role of a housekeeper beset by fears and fully aware of the danger inherent in her emotionally unstable employer's new marriage.

An appropriate musical score stresses the mood and intensity of the play's atmosphere and setting, and acoustics are good in the Nix Theatre.

Dean Goodman in the past has served as director of the Provincetown Playhouse. He has been a student of both Max Reinhardt and Maria Ouspenskaya; he has produced, directed, and

FIRST LADY

With a particularly adroit sense of timing, the Golden Bough Circle Theatre Players are presenting First Lady, by George S. Kaufman and Katharine Dayton, on the week-ends of this presidential convention month. The comedy drama, revolving about behind-the-scenes politics in the nation's capital during an unnamed administration, concerns the no-holds-barred maneuvering of a pair of Washington hostesses, each determined to put her own husband in the White House, and to win for herself the position of First Lady.

The result is a highly engaging comedy, barbed with witty lines, and delivering many a verbal broadside at high-level government figures, and their wives, who indulge in tea-cup politicking often more decisive (according to Playwrights Kaufman and Dayton) than the goings on at any convention city. First Lady also offers broad caricatures of personalities once familiar to the Washington scene.

Charles Thomas directs a particularly well-chosen cast with pace and skill, and as always, fulfills splendidly the unique requirements of the Players Circle Theater where the audience gains a sense of special participation in the drama being unfolded.

Betty Fowlston, as Lucy Chase Wayne, wife of the Secretary of State, granddaughter of a famous president, and celebrated as the one-time White House baby, who strives to use her inherent political acumen to put her own husband in the White House, is a delight in her role. Miss Fowlston possesses so outstanding a measure of glamor, poise and charm that she entrances her audience throughout First Lady. To a role once played by Jane Cowl, she brings a sure stage presence, brisk, ironic humor, flashes of sympathy, genuine warmth, and great chic.

Running Betty Fowlston a close second for First Lady honors (histrionic as well as in the play's political sense) is Jeanne Danis, as Irene Hibbard, the young, bored and romantically restless wife of a dyspeptic supreme court justice, the latter tellingly portrayed by Edgar Bryant. Miss Danis, whose good looks (like her protagonist, Lucy's, political acumen) are inherent, manages to imbue them with a sardonic kind of silken ennui which flashes fire when she delivers thrusts at Lucy, or is on the receiving end of Lucy's malice. Miss Danis' second act scene of domestic incompatibility with her pompous, fretful mate is a gem of high comedy.

Florence Venn, as Belle Hardwick, the over-dressed wife of a senator, who has survived two different administrations, and knows the ropes, presents an amusing portrait of a disillusioned Washington wife. Miss Venn's costumes of an exaggerated elegance add to the soundness of characterization.

Playwrights Kaufman and Dayton use a broad brush in portraying such types as Mrs. Creevey, played ably by Madeleine Hicks, the club woman to end all club women; Everett May, as the fledgling Senator Keane, who becomes the unsuspecting victim of the rival hostesses; Arnold Bowbay, as secretary of state, and husband of Lucy; and Douglas MacFarlane as a senator who takes Washington and politics with caustic realism.

Valerie Furlong is lovely to see and dramatically effective as a honey-tongued southern belle; Howard Brunn Levinson is believable as a state department diplomat, and Laurence Lansing is splendid as the opportunist owner of a chain of newspapers who indulges in king-making with an eye to becoming ambassador to the Court of St. James.

Roxana Balland, as Lucy's wasp-tongued secretary, milks every drop of comedy from an amusing bit of by-play during which the ebullient Lucy begins to empty the contents of her mammoth handbag while her secretary frantically rushes about clearing table tops to receive the avalanche. John Sullivan attributes to Lucy's butler exactly the right degree of glum resignation. Ruth Ware, Polly Bowbay, Gawain Dolly, Bob Martinson, George Spelvin, Doris Nicita and Grace Brueck are guests in Lucy's Washington mansion, each of whom plays his role to achieve full scope for Kaufman's poking of fun at the capital's drawing room set.

First Lady plays every Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights at the Casanova Street Players Circle Theatre. It will continue through the week-end of September 14, 15 and 16.

iar to local audiences, all of whom are all well cast and do much to make Kiss Me Kate a success. Fran Brewer as Hattie, and Nick LeFeuvre, Sr., as Harrison Howell, are particularly well received by the audience. John Neris and Karl Buckley as the First and Second Gunmen are very funny in their rendition of Brush Up Your Shakespeare.

The choreography by Joanne Nix is well suited to the small stage of the Wharf Theater, and the chorus is fresh, young and spirited in their handling of the many dances in the production. The costumes and sets are attractive, and the newly-redecorated interior of the theater also adds to the festive atmosphere.

Gilbert Boyer's capable musical direction does much to make Kiss Me Kate a pleasant evening's entertainment. All in all, the Wharf theater's current week-end fare should continue to be a real hit, both with theater goers who have seen other productions of the show, and with those who are seeing Kate for the first time.

performed in more than 150 plays, been a drama critic, and a writer for both stage and radio. Of his association with Dudley Nix, he says, "The economic pressures which have made it increasingly difficult for new plays to be produced on a commercial basis indicate that it has become the responsibility of the little theatre movement to take bold steps to make possible the production of such plays. The Pacific Playwright Company proposes as its chief objective the production of new plays by western playwrights. We plan, also, to produce plays which are proven successes. Classics and dramas which we consider to be of unusual artistic merit may also be included in our repertoire."

In Goodman's Walk The Tight Wire the Nix Studio Theatre has a provocative and often absorbing spine-tingler, one which should keep Carmel's very selective and aware theater-goers interested. Performances will continue on week-ends through Labor Day, with a special performance scheduled on Monday of the holiday week-end. —Elizabeth Lawrence

The Millers Attend Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Alan P. Miller of Whittier, annual Carmel summer visitors, ended this year's stay here on Tuesday when they left for San Francisco, where they are to attend the Republican National Convention. Mrs. Miller has received much newspaper notice in Whittier and Los Angeles for the poem which she wrote for President Eisenhower. Presidential assistant, Sherman Adams, sent a note of thanks to Mrs. Miller on receipt of the engraved, framed poem addressed to the President. Both Mr. and Mrs. Miller are friends of Vice-President Nixon and watch his career with great interest.

Jacqueline Tibbetts Married

Jacqueline Tibbetts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Tibbetts, was married on Saturday afternoon to Bernard Torres, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Torres, in a 2:00 o'clock ceremony in San Carlos Catholic Church.

The bride wore a gown with a high-necked, long-sleeved, fitted bodice of white lace which extended into a full floor-length white net skirt. A pearl coronet held her fingertip veil in place and she carried a bouquet of white stephanotis centered with white orchids.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Barbara, and bridesmaids were Genevieve Artellan, sister of the groom, Georgia Machado, Caroline Borchers and Jeanie Bolton. They were dressed alike in gowns of white marquisette embroidered with pink and red flowers which matched the carnations in their bouquets. The maid of honor carried red carnations and the bridesmaids pink.

Susan Zimmerman was flowergirl for her cousin and another cousin of the bride, Michael Coffman, was ringbearer.

Mrs. Tibbetts attended her daughter's wedding in a sheath dress of black silk threaded with gold, and a corsage of white baby orchids. Mrs. Torres, the groom's mother, was dressed in a rose silk brocade sheath dress with a corsage similar to the bride's mother's.

Best man was Dennis Narvaez and ushers were Paul Artellan, Eugene Cota, Louis Sanchez, Louis Jaramillo, Benjamin Artellan and William DeAmaral, Jr.

A wedding dinner was held immediately after the ceremony in the Elysian Hall attended by members of the wedding party, relatives and intimate friends. In the evening a wedding reception for a larger group was held in the American Legion Hall in Carmel, where the guests danced and watched Jacqueline and Bernard cut their four-tiered wedding cake.

The young couple are now honeymooning in Yosemite but will return at the end of this week to San Francisco to live while Bernard, a psychology major at San Francisco State College, completes his senior year.

Jacqueline is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Eaton, longtime residents of Carmel Highlands.

Pamela Lunke Weds

Pamela Lunke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lunke of Oakland, and Louis Kuznitz of San Francisco were married by Judge Ray Baugh in his Monterey Chambers on Sunday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock.

The bride chose a white cotton lace, street length, princess style dress for her marriage. Her shoes matched the dress and she pinned an orchid to the full skirt of her gown.

The reception following the wedding was held at Nepenthe. The couple will make their home in San Francisco. They are planning to leave soon for Mexico and South America, where the groom, an electronics expert, will work in radio, television or recording.

Pamela has been living in Carmel for the past three years studying piano with David Alberto and employed summers on the Nepenthe staff.

Carol and Blair Engaged

Carol Lee Moore and Blair McDonald are planning an October wedding at the Church of the Wayfarer. Their engagement was announced by Carol's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Stuart Moore of Stockton and Pebble Beach, at a family dinner in Stockton on August 4, following the golden wedding reception of Carol's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stuart Moore; and again, the next day, at a brunch and swimming party at the Moore's home given for young friends of Carol and Blair. Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. McDonald of Carmel Valley, Blair's parents, went to Stockton to attend both parties. This past weekend Carol has been here as the guest of the McDonald's, returning home on Monday.

Carol has just come back from a summer spent in Europe with college classmate, Virginia Pioda of Salinas. She attended the Stockton schools and the Katharine Branson School in Ross before entering the University of California from which she graduated a year ago. She was affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority at Cal.

Last fall she started her practice teaching in the San Francisco schools and was awarded her teaching credentials in February. Her brother is Craig Moore, stationed with the Air Force in Milton, Florida, and her sisters are Sue Moore and JoAnn Moore, the latter at present traveling in Europe.

Blair graduated from Carmel High School in 1948. He was class treasurer, president of the Ski Club and member of Block "C". He attended Menlo Junior College before entering Stanford University. He is a graduate of the Stanford School of Business and was affiliated with Sigma Chi fraternity.

Blair worked for seven months in Alaska, following Business School, then toured Europe, and is now associated with his father in the Monterey Sand Company, doing sales, design and production work. He has one brother, Robert E. McDonald, III, of Carmel Highlands.

Janet Lee Nelson Born

Lieutenant and Mrs. Leland Clair Nelson are parents of a daughter born at Fort Ord hospital on August 8. Named Janet Lee, the husky young lady tipped the scales at eight pounds, seven ounces at birth. She has a three-year-old brother, Scott. The Nelsons came here last September from a tour of duty in Japan. Lieutenant Nelson, a dentist, is now stationed at the Naval Postgraduate School. Both Lieutenant and Mrs. Nelson are pleased to have their daughter born in California. Janet Lee is a fourth generation native daughter on her mother's side of the family.

Grandparents of Janet are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley E. McPherson of Oakland and Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Nelson of Menlo Park.

M. Robertson

Miriam Turnor Robertson suffered a cerebral occlusion at her Carmel Highlands home on Monday afternoon and died shortly after arrival at a local hospital.

Mrs. Robertson was keenly interested in music and active in the musical life of Carmel since coming from Chicago, Illinois, to live here with her husband, R. Roy Robertson, nine years ago. She was a member of the board of directors of the Carmel Music Society at the time of her death.

Mrs. Robertson was born October 24, 1886, in Centerville, California.

Besides her husband, survivors are a sister, Mrs. Frederick Lee Wolfe of Berkeley and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held this afternoon in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea Crematorium conducted by Dr. Joseph M. Ewing of the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Carmel Police, Mike The Cat, Get In The Act At Nix Theatre

Impresario Dudley Nix had some tense moments back-stage as well as before the footlights prior to and during last week-end's premiere of the Dean Goodman's spine-tingling drama, Walk The Tight Wire.

Producer-director Goodman and his cast arrived late last Thursday night from San Francisco. Since they were not familiar with the Nix Studio Theater acoustics and stage, they at once commenced a midnight to 2:00 a.m. rehearsal. Midway in the play a dramatic moment occurs when the heroine, pretty San Francisco actress Nancy Hansen, believes her bridegroom intends to murder her. Shots are heard, and she runs screaming from the stage, and pounds loudly on an off-stage door. The rehearsal proceeded as scheduled, with Nancy doing her screaming-door-pounding bit about 2:00 o'clock Friday morning. She got results. The Nix Theatre, on Mission near Eighth Avenue, soon was surrounded by alarmed neighbors in pajamas and robes, who were joined shortly by the Carmel police, suspicion in their eyes and harsh words on their lips. All was explained; the neighbors went back to bed; the police departed, and the rehearsal continued with less audible scenes.

Then on Sunday night, before a packed house, the Nix cat, Mike, greatly intrigued by the stream of theatre-goers to premises he had previously considered exclusively his own, crept into the theater and hid. As the climactic third act of the suspense drama approached, Mike became visible on the first row of seats. Daintily he was picking his way along the seats, with an interested eye cocked toward the brightly lighted stage, and the actors declaiming thereon. The drama reviewer for The Pine Cone waited until Mike reached her seat, then she grabbed him, settled him on her lap, and patted him into a temporary moment of purring calm. Mike put up with this coddling for a few minutes, then events on the stage again caught his attention, and he prepared to make his own entrance, arching his back and bearing his claws, his furry head alert, ready to spring onto the stage only a few feet away. The reviewer took a strangle-hold on Mike, disengaged his claws from her best theater-going dress, and held him in a vise-like grip until events on the stage permitted her to creep out, still clutching the unwilling Mike, and to dump him unceremoniously outside the entrance.

Otherwise, Walk The Tight Wire is proceeding as planned. The neighbors in the vicinity of Mission and Eighth Avenue do not now even bat an eyelash when they hear revolver shots, screams or doors pounded, and Mike has become bored with the entire drama. After all, he has already seen most of one performance — and from a specially upholstered seat at that.

Letters To The Editor . . .

Francisco — West Portal — we are waging a fight against a proposal to run a freeway right through the district. This would mean that over 2,000 homes would be razed, tree-lined streets destroyed, and a roaring stream of traffic hurled past our doors, day and night. Sheer madness is the only word for this callousness. When we look back on it in years to come it will seem as a bad dream.

Meanwhile, it is up to us, the people, to fight for preservation of beauty at every opportunity. To repel invasion of quiet, lovely communities, and hang on until this fever dies down. It would be a good thing if those who are tainted with this itch for so-called progress sat themselves down and quietly read J. B. Priestley's Journey Down a Rainbow. Therein you will find some food for thought and I am sure, on finishing the book, be more than ever convinced that we must make a stand against what J. B. Priestley so aptly calls "ADMASS".

Let those who wish to be swamped by modern hideousness go seek it. Please don't change Carmel.

Winifred Lane
Sincerely.

CHURCHES

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The healing power of divine Love will be set forth at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Christ Jesus."

Jesus' assurance to his disciples of their ability to heal the sick by means of prayer will be included in the Scriptural reading (John 14:12): "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father."

Selections read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include the following (243:4): "The divine Love, which made harmless the poisonous viper, which delivered men from the boiling oil, from the fiery furnace, from the jaws of the lion, can heal the sick in every age and triumph over sin and death."

NOTICE OF THE PROPOSED FORMATION OF CARMEL CONSOLIDATED RECREATION PARK AND PARKWAY DISTRICT IN MONTEREY COUNTY

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that it is proposed to form a consolidated recreation, park and parkway district in the County of Monterey, California, and in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, to be known by the name of "Carmel Consolidated Recreation Park and Parkway District".

That the Board of Supervisors of the County of Monterey and the Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea have jointly fixed a time and place for a public hearing on the matter of the formation of said district, to-wit: Tuesday, the 11th day of September, 1956, at the hour of 11:00 o'clock, A.M., at the chambers of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, at the Courthouse, Salinas, California.

That at said hearing it will be determined, among other things, whether a tax ceiling of twenty-five cents per $100 of assessed valuation of the taxable property in said district shall be set for the district and submitted to the electors for approval.

That at any time prior to the time fixed for said hearing any freeholder residing within the proposed district may file with the Clerk of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors written objections to the formation of such district.

That at said hearing said Board of Supervisors will hear any person having objection to the inclusion within the proposed district of any territory.

That the territory proposed to be organized into said district has, as its exterior boundaries, the exterior boundaries of the Carmel Unified School District, containing territory within the incorporated limits of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea and unincorporated territory within the County of Monterey, described as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at the southwest corner of the Rancho Punta de Pinos (Station No. 2); thence about S. 66° E in a direct line to the northwest corner of the Rancho Canada de La Segunda; thence easterly along the north boundary of said rancho to the northeast corner of Lot 1 of said rancho; thence southerly along the easterly line of said Lot 1 to the Carmel River; thence westerly down the Carmel River to the northwest corner of the Rancho El Potrero De San Carlos; thence southeasterly along the southwesterly boundary of said rancho to the line between Sections 32 and 33 T 16 S, R1E, M.D.M.; thence south along said section line to the southwest corner of Section 4, T 17 S, R1E; thence East ½ mile, thence south 1 mile; thence West ½ mile; thence south 1 mile to the southwest corner of Section 16, T 17 R1E; thence west along section line produced to the shore of the Pacific Ocean; thence northerly and northwesterly along the shore of the Pacific Ocean to the place of beginning.

DATED this 20th day of August, 1956.

OFF TO ITALY

Colonel Orin H. Moore has left for Italy where he will be stationed with the Air Force.

For a clean car and clean highways, hang a paper bag in your automobile to make it convenient to put papers, cartons, cans and bottles in it for proper disposal later. Motorists are warned by the California State Automobile Association that tossing litter out of motor vehicles is against the law and subject to strict penalties. Besides, streets and highways are more pleasant to view and safer to travel when they are free of trash and clutter.

John Hastie

John James Hastie died on August 18 in a Salinas hospital where he had been a patient for some time because of a cardiac condition.

Mr. Hastie was a palm reader, known as the Seer of the Sierra. Each summer he practiced his calling by the side of the Coast Highway in Carmel Highlands. Winters he spent in Palm Springs. His Carmel home was at Fifth and Dolores Streets.

Born in Chicago, Illinois, on April 29, 1883, Mr. Hastie came to California with his family at the age of three. Later he attended the Oakland schools. He was a veteran of World War I and came here to live after he was mustered out of the Army.

He is survived by a sister, Miss Helen Hastie of Oakland.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday morning in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, conducted by Dr. Joseph M. Ewing, pastor of the Carmel Presbyterian Church. Burial was in Monterey Cemetery.

Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

A NEW NATIONAL PARK

Up to August of this year there were 28 national parks in this country. There will very soon be 29. The addition to the system will be the Virgin Islands National Park, made possible by President Eisenhower's signature on H. R. 5299. This bill authorizes the establishment of the new park, which will be consummated as soon as all the technicalities can be complied with.

A release from the Information Service of the Department of the Interior gives some interesting facts about it. It will include some 10,000 acres on the island of St. John and adjacent rocks and bays. Headquarters will be on the island of St. Thomas, the main island of the Virgin Island group.

Two paragraphs from the release give a thumb-nail description of the new park: "The scenic quality, the plant life, and the setting of St. John Island in the protected channels of the Virgin Islands are totally different from anything set apart in the United States or its territories for national park purposes. The plant and animal life of the island and the surrounding waters are of exceptional interest and great educational value. The park will offer many fine recreational possibilities; these include excellent sport fishing in the surrounding waters.

"The area also possesses much of historic and prehistoric interest. Relics of the prehistoric Carib Indians are found on St. John, as well as remnants of the sugar mills and other plantation structures of the early historic period. The island is unquestionably of national park caliber".

The last sentence raises a question that has recently been given much public attention. Many people have no idea what the words "national park caliber" mean. Many people also have no idea of the difference between a national park and a national monument. The issue has recently been brought to a head by the proposal to turn Petrified Forest National Monument into a national park.

In the July-September issue of the National Park Magazine Devereux Butcher, editor of the magazine, discusses this subject in a six-page article entitled "What is the Difference between a National Park and a National Monument?". He asks whether the qualities that constitute inspirational beauty in the national parks might be listed as "scenic magnificence, diversity of landscapes, variety of features, large area, wildlife, and wilderness". There is no question but that these qualities exist in some degree in all of the national parks. Evaluations by different people would probably vary greatly but nearly every one will admit that certain parks, such as Grand Canyon, Yellowstone, Yosemite, Olympic and others, have these qualities to a very high degree, while others would rank far down at the foot of the list. For instance, many people think that Platt and Hot Springs are so far down that they should be dropped from the system.

In general the difference between a national park and a national monument is that each park must be established by Congressional Act and theoretically must have in a superlative degree the qualities mentioned above, whereas a national monument may be established by Presidential Proclamation under the Antiquities Act of 1906 and is supposed to be set aside mainly to protect special features of scientific or historic interest.

So Soon? Pilot Market Gets Permit For More Building

Walt Pilot needs more room to operate his grocery in the location he has occupied for two weeks.

"Fastest example of a Carmel business outgrowing its quarters," commented Planning Commission Chairman Frank Putnam yesterday afternoon when Keith Evans, owner of the building, requested commission permission to build a warehouse for Pilot at the rear of the new store.

Evans was granted the permit and within 90 days a low, shake-roofed, stud and stucco building will be added to the existing Pilot's Market.

On the Planning Commission's recommendation, Evans will also plant some oaks in the landscaping about the parking lot fence.

"I thought a flowering tree better", Evans remarked when the commission pointed out his Fremontia tree did not comply with their original stipulation of oaks and pines.

Gladys McCloud was given permission to have a sign on both the front and rear of her new Ocean Avenue building (old Pilot's Market) with capital letters 16 inches high and small letters eight inches in height. The capitals are four inches higher htan stipulated size but the overall sign is within the 16 square feet regulation.

Carmel Paint and Wallpaper Company was denied permission by the Commission to place a Dennis the Menace figure at the right of their existing lettered sign.

D. Kirk Erskine was given his variance for a special permit to abandon one off-street parking space for his Dolores Street building between Fifth and Sixth Streets, housing a confectionery with dwelling in the rear.

DR. BERNE DEFENDANT IN $36,173 DAMAGE SUIT

Dr. Eric Berne is defendant in a $36,173 damage suit brought against him by Mrs. Hildreth Chase in San Francisco Superior Court on August 15. She charges she was confined to her hotel room for six weeks as the result of alleged injuries received in the swimming pool at Pyramid Lake Ranch, Nevada, on September 2, 1955.

According to Morris Lowenthal, Mrs. Chase's attorney, Dr. Berne and another guest, ex-wife of San Francisco attorney Mel Belli, engaged in a friendly poolside scuffle and fell into the pool. Mrs. Chase alleges she received a kick in the shins during the confusion and claims $25,000 general damages, $1,173 medical expenses and $10,000 exemplary damages.

KIWANIS DERBY WINNERS

Arne Halle and Mrs. Alba Kaster of Burlingame are owners of 17-jewel wrist watches for catching the largest fish in Sunday's Kiwanis Trout Derby at the Weston Trout Farm. Halle's fish measured a full foot.

Don Adams, Kiwanis president, caught the smallest fish, three and a quarter inches, winning a pocket compass.

Other winners were Pam Martineau, K. Kabata, Jim Kalber, Chris Halle, Jeanne and Shirley Harrah, Mark Weston, and Hans Smith.

There were more than 50 entries in the Derby, many of those entering barbecuing their catches on the spot.
